

No Need to Worry - Tax Cuts Will Offset Carbon Taxes

28th February 2009

The Letters Editor,

Many devotees to saving the planet from nothing but the imagination of Rudd, Wong, Garret, Brown and their adherents, refuse to produce any figures. They insist on asserting that tax cuts can offset the costs of a carbon tax.

So let's take a look.

At 30 June 2006 there were a projected 8.1 million households in Australia.

Cost of carbon tax = $300 per month (Or more. Some estimate much more)

8,100,000 households x $300 = $2,430,000,000 = $2.43 billion per month.

$2.43 billion x 12 months = $29.16 billion per annum.

Being a lifetime bureaucrat, Mr. Rudd and his adherents know nothing about the fine edge that on which competitive industries rest.

Even at this stage, chief executive of Pacific Brands Sue Morphet said on Wednesday, is that manufacturing in Australia "is no longer a competitive advantage" to the company. Hence the dismissal of 1,850 workers.

What is it going to be like when Mr. Rudd and or Mr. Turnbull introduce their ETS and or direct taxes?

The enemies are always those who get you killed. It does not matter which side they are on. At present it seems all of Canberra's politicians are enemies of the people.
