The Letters Editor,

The Model Shows.....

The model shows this, the model shows that. Treasury's model shows that early action to tackle climate change will "sustain growth, create new jobs and protect our economy into the future" said Treasurer Swann. His remarks endorsed by Garnaut, Wong, Rudd, Garret and Brown. Modeling is the newspeak word for guess.

What I find curious is that neither the Treasury, nor any other Government official, could predict the present financial crash by a day even, yet they are predicting what will happen by 2020, 2050 and even 2090.

But worst of all planning to tax the population with an emissions trading tax that will do nothing whatsoever to the climate one way or the other, but will lower living standards dramatically, as we are coerced into using much less electricity.

And the Government is spending $164,000 a day on ads to persuade us that this recent cooling should be called "climate change" – and proof of warming.

Future historians will indeed be amazed that an entire population could commit economic suicide in such an irrational manner.

My model shows that behind it all is the PM's driving ambition to become Secretary General of the United Nations. His ambition fits hand in glove with the dark green's anti-industrial zeal to dramatically reduce the nation's and the world's population.
