

Rudd Acts Like An Angry Ant

The Letters Editor

Rudd Acts Like An Angry Ant.

Regarding the Prime Minister's outburst at the Lowy Institute. He named those who oppose his ETS as deniers, skeptics and radicals.

Oxford Dictionary - Radical : Fundamental, far reaching, thorough. Advocating fundamental reforms.

I am an Australian radical. I am also a confirmed denier, insofar as I realise that the climate is always changing and will continue to do so. The climate is basically controlled by the moods of the sun.

I know that CO₂ is not a pollutant, but it is deemed so by the Prime Minister and his ilk. They intend to impose a permanent heavy tax by way of an Emissions Trading System.

More CO₂ in the atmosphere will do nothing but good for the plant life and hence all life on earth and in its vast oceans. In any case excess CO₂ in the atmosphere tends to be absorbed by the vast oceans.

Unfortunately we have an opposition leader who is also a keen ETS advocate. I think he will fail as the rational scientists of the world are stating in sound scientific presentations and essays that CO₂ is not a problem. These facts are beginning to be published everywhere.

Should the liberals develop a rational opposition leader, Rudd is by no means guaranteed the next election.

There are deniers and skeptics in the National and Liberal parties and also in the Family First Party. They are beginning to get a hearing and Rudd resents that fact. Hence his poisonous outburst.

Ronald Kitching

P.O. Box 9809
Frenchville QLD 4701
Australia
Phone 61 - 7 - 4926 4681
Fax 61 - 7 - 4926 4681
E-mail <ron.kitching@rahco.org>
RAHCO Web Site <www.rahco.com>