

"The Touch Table"... science for today

Fascinating stuff!

Take a look at this short video from PBS which shows part of an episode of Wired Science. This segment looks at a touch table. "What is a touch table?" you ask. One observer described it as Google-Earth on steroids! If you check it out for yourself you will see it truly is amazing and could be a great business tool for creative minds.

About halfway through the video the touch table shows Iran's nuclear facility and does a very interesting thing; it moves the satellite pictures as a function of time in years and lets you see what has really has been happening there and what they "hid" or, rather, thought they "hid" underground!

Click on the below link to watch the video:

<http://www.pbs.org/kcet/wiredscience/video/231-touchtable.html>

You can also check out the following link for more information on the touch table:

<http://www.touchtable.com/>